CLASSIC SERIES HONEY

One of the oldest and most important sweeteners used by man, honey, has a beneficial effect and deserves ... to take the place of sugar.

Even in winter, honey fits our drinks to soften our neck, but this is not the only way that we can use it. Small quantity of honey in the dressing of our salad, the chicken, our smoothies, our yogurt, always gives a sweet and healthy note, while it has a lot to offer...

It gives energy, naturally helps to a better sleep as it helps us relax, is good for our heart, it soothes the throat, it fights ... "hangover", it fights bad breath (we can mix honey with cinnamon and ... freshen our breath), it strengthens the immune as it contains minerals such as potassium, calcium, chlorine and sodium, which helps in the functioning of cells in the body, several vitamins such as C, a, B1, which although located in small quantities, they play a role in good functioning of the body, while the enzymes result in the breakdown of free radicals etc.

MELI AMFIPOLIS – Honey with sesame

Exclusive Distributor

Honey with Sesame

Sesame contains ingredients that reduce cholesterol and blood pressure. Sesame contains a powerful antioxidant system, consisting mainly of three substances, sesamin, sesamol and vitamin E (in the form of gamma-tocopherol). These substances, combined with the selenium contained in sesame seeds, have strong antioxidant activity, preventing the oxidation of fatty acids in the body. Studies have shown that there is a striking contribution of these sesame components in capturing and neutralizing very strong free radicals. Consumption of sesame by athletes who exercise regularly reduces the risk of muscle injury, caused by oxidative stress due to increased production of radicals. Therefore, the combination of sesame with honey gives to all people, especially those who exercise, all the necessary supplies for detoxification and proper body growth.

Forest Honey

Intensely aromatic chestnut and oak tree honey from the dense forests of central Rhodope, rich in nutrients, with strong antioxidant effects (four times those of other countries !). It is produced from the nectar and honey dew of chestnut which is considered a good beekeeping plant and quite popular in the mountains of Greece. The chestnut and oak honey flavor is so intense and slightly bitter, that a small portion can overpower the taste of other honeys. Slowly crystallized after 1-2 years.
